大問4A English play event

メールを読み、次ページのQ23-Q25に答えなさい。

From: Aiko Ito <aiko.ito-1206@letter-wings.com>
To: Steven Clark <s.c-0528@bluelines-mail.com>
Date: June 15
Subject: English play event

Dear Steven,

This is Aiko Ito from the university's Event Club. As I promised, I'm sharing details about the event at our university. Next month, a student theater team from our partner university in Canada will visit our campus in Japan. They will perform a play in English for us, which will be a valuable experience for many students who are interested in learning English.

The play will be performed once on Saturday, July 25, in the main hall on campus. It will start at 6 p.m. and last about two hours. This is a free event for all students and teachers of our university, while visitors from outside the university will need to pay a small fee. After the play, there will be a friendly dinner party where the actors and Event Club members can meet and talk.

I would also like to ask for your help. Our Event Club is looking for volunteers to support the event and make it run smoothly. As an exchange student from the United States, you can help us with language support. In other words, your tasks will include helping with communication between the visiting team and our staff. Volunteers are also invited to the dinner party. If you are interested, please let me know by June 30.

Thank you,
Aiko Ito

Handwashing

People today know that handwashing is important for their health. However, it was not a common habit about 150 years ago. Back then, many doctors did not understand the importance of handwashing. A doctor from Hungary named Ignaz Semmelweis was the first person to recognize its importance for medical workers. While many doctors did not know much about bacteria, Semmelweis discovered in the middle of the nineteenth century that washing hands could prevent people from spreading disease.

He got the idea after noticing something important. At that time, many women died from a disease after giving birth. This happened much more often in hospitals run by doctors than in clinics run by midwives, professionals who helped with giving birth. Semmelweis also noticed that some hospital doctors were going straight from examining dead bodies to helping women give birth. This made him think that doctors might be carrying something harmful to the mothers without realizing it.

His method to prevent the disease was different from regular handwashing with soap. Doctors needed to clean their hands carefully using a special liquid. After other doctors began to follow this, the death rate of the mothers dropped from about 18 percent to about 2 percent. In addition, when medical tools were cleaned, the rate went down to about 1 percent. In this way, he made a discovery that changed how doctors worked in hospitals.

Even though Semmelweis made an important discovery, many doctors at that time did not believe him. They did not want to accept the idea that their actions were causing mothers to die. Sadly, Semmelweis passed away before people truly understood the value of his discovery. Later, his work helped other scientists learn more about bacteria. Over time, people understood the importance of handwashing. Eventually, by the early twentieth century, it became common for both doctors and ordinary people.
