Dear Grandma,

Never Too Late

Anna Mary Robertson Moses, also known as Grandma Moses, was an American artist. She was born in 1860 on a farm in New York. As a girl, Anna worked hard on the farm and took care of her family. She liked to play outside with her brothers in her free time. She also loved making things with her hands. She often enjoyed drawing pictures on paper her father bought for her.

Anna married Thomas Moses in 1887 and lived on the local farm she loved. Even after Thomas died in 1927, she kept working on her farm with the help of her youngest son. But when she got older, it was hard for her to do some things on the farm because her hands hurt. So, she decided to try painting instead. She was already over seventy-five years old then.

Anna painted all the things she loved from her farm life. She often painted green fields, snowy winters, and happy people living in nature. Her paintings were so unique and full of happiness that a lot of people wanted to see them. They felt so warm and happy when they saw her works painted in a simple way with many colors.

Anna kept painting until about 1960. She created more than 1,500 works of art in her life, and her paintings became popular across the country. Even today, many people come to see her paintings in museums. Anna and her paintings show that anyone can try something new at any time in their life.
