Real and Artificial Brain

Today, digital equipment is a large part of everyday life. This makes it difficult to tell the difference between what is real and what is not. This is also true in the world of art. Nowadays, it is common to look at art pieces through electronic equipment. Many experts agree that when people look at art, it (　18　). However, experts seem to have different opinions about how the difference between a real art piece and another version of it is recognized.

An American company says that the human brain may not be able to tell the difference between a real work of art and a digital work of art. In a study, volunteers looked at a single piece of art as a real piece, a digital version on a screen, and another version in a virtual world, a digital environment created by a computer. (　19　), the results showed that their brains responded almost the same when they looked at the work in the virtual world as in the real world.

However, a similar study performed in the Netherlands showed different results. It used several paintings to record the brain activity of people enjoying the real works and their fake posters. The results showed that (　20　) when they looked at real artworks. Also, looking at the real paintings caused a strong positive response in the part of the brain linked to some important factors like memory. This made the scientists think that such an experience of art would be a wonderful opportunity for children.

A Special Holiday in Mexico

The Day of the Dead is a holiday celebrated mainly in Mexico on November 1 and 2. People believe the spirits of their ancestors come home to spend time with their families. Aspects of this celebration have existed in the country for thousands of years. (21) is connected to a ceremony practiced by the native peoples of the Americas. When the Spanish began living in the Americas, they combined a Spanish holiday with the local ceremony.

Generally, for this holiday, people set up a special space in their homes with many candles to lead the spirits of their ancestors back home. Items, like their favorite foods and books, are arranged in the space. Many people also visit and clean the graves where their ancestors were laid after death. They do not necessarily feel sad for people who have passed away. (22), they often decorate these places with bright orange and yellow flowers. Some people play music, while others pray. Therefore, the scene often seems more like a picnic or party.

While many people spend time with their family at the graves to keep their ancestors' memories alive, people can also spend the day in a different way. Some cities in the country celebrate the day with colorful and exciting parades. People wear costumes and paint their faces to look like skeletons to take part in the events. Through the parades, people are reminded that death is (23). In this way, the holiday can help people to have a better attitude about death.

大問3A About Our Volunteer Project

メールを読み、次ページのQ24-Q26に答えなさい。

From: Wilson Howard
To: Lisa Thompson
Date: September 5
Subject: About our volunteer project

Dear Lisa,

My name is Wilson Howard. It was great meeting you the other day and discussing your interest in joining our volunteer group. I want to invite you to our next event aimed at reducing food loss. This year's event will be held throughout the day on September 21. Last year's project was a huge success because we collected over a thousand food items to share with people who needed them.

The purpose of this project is to reduce food waste as much as we can. We would like to support people who do not have enough money to buy food in our community. By connecting local businesses, citizens, and our volunteer group, we can make a huge difference. This project not only helps us reduce waste but also builds a stronger connection among everyone in the community and teaches us to be responsible for our own actions.

If you would like to be part of this project as a group member, you will be collecting food from supporters who bring their food to the community center. Don't worry if you cannot join us as a volunteer this time. However, we would appreciate it if you could offer your food as a supporter citizen. If so, please come visit us between 9 a.m. and 12 p.m. on that day.

Thank you,

Wilson Howard

2 The group will hand out the food to its volunteers.
3 The group will work on saving food from going to waste.
4 The group will hold it on September 21 for half a day.

(25) What does Wilson Howard expect from the volunteer event?

1 Local businesses will share some ideas about increasing their sales.
2 It will offer an opportunity to connect people in the community.
3 He will get to know more local businesses for future events.
4 People will sell more food made in the local community.

(26) If Lisa Thompson helps with the project as a volunteer, she will

1 receive food from supporters at the community center.
2 work on planning the event with Wilson Howard.
3 play a role in going around the city and providing food.
4 prepare gifts for supporter citizens and local food stores.

大問3B 長文

本文を読み、次ページのQ27-Q31に答えなさい。

House Projects

In recent years, certain European towns have attracted attention for their projects to sell empty houses at extremely low prices. For example, Italy, like other countries, has many small towns in the countryside that are losing population because young people are leaving. Because of this, many elderly citizens in these towns have no younger family to take care of their houses. So, they rely on their local governments. Eventually, local governments take advantage of the situation by selling these houses at low prices.

When people buy these homes, the effect on a town is huge. Buying a house means paying taxes to the town. There are a lot of times when nobody buys a used house because it still costs a lot. Then, it is more valuable to the town to sell houses at lower prices and receive money as taxes than not to sell them. It will also help the local economy because new house owners moving from other cities will spend money on local products and services.

This all may sound very attractive. However, there are things to know about buying these homes through these projects. Firstly, it is more likely that even when people buy a house, they cannot live in it right away. Because these houses have mostly been left empty, new owners need to make major repairs first. Also, it often requires a lot of money to repair the house. Moreover, some towns require owners to start and finish the repair work within a certain period of time after buying it.

When people buy a house in a beautiful small European town at a very low price, they may still have some issues. It is important to understand that it takes time to repair an old house after buying it. But still, the effort may be worth it if taking care of the old house leads to taking part in the local community and can make the small town lively.

大問3B 長文設問 Q27-Q31

前ページの本文を読み、最も適切なものを1つ選びなさい。

(27) What is true about the projects by small towns in Europe?

1 Old, valuable houses are sold at a high price by the local governments.
2 Houses that no one lives in are being sold at very low prices.
3 The communities share information with young people about buying a house.
4 Some towns are trying to attract young people by offering free houses.

(28) What will probably happen when a person buys a used house in a town?

1 Some problems in the town's economy will increase.
2 The town will become more popular among young people.
3 The population of older people in the town will be larger.
4 More money will be brought into the town.

(29) People who buy a house through the projects

1 will need to send a letter to the government.
2 can start a new life in it right after they buy it.
3 are likely to spend much money fixing it up.
4 must move to the town within the month they buy it.

(30) Buying a house in Europe through the projects

1 is not an easy action because it requires time and money.
2 may not be recommended if owners like living in a small town.
3 sounds like a great plan for people who want a house immediately.
4 seems to be convenient for busy workers in a big city.

(31) What do we learn from the passage?

1 All people need is one euro to start a new life in a local town in Europe.
2 Owners of old houses are allowed to pay less taxes by selling them at low prices.
3 People can usually move into a new house anytime after buying it.
4 The projects will give the new owners an opportunity to help the towns.
